

MICKEY MOUSE

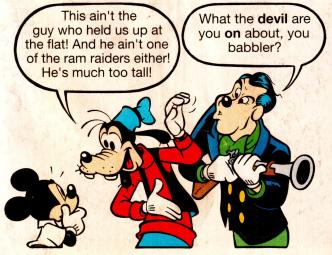

The Three Wise Monkeys

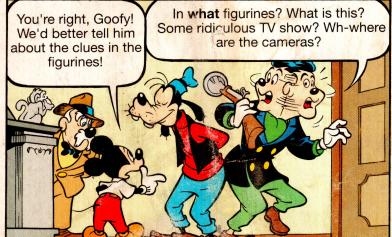

PART TWG Mickey and Goofy are in Italy looking for a rare figurine of a monkey. It will have an inscription on it which, with the information from two other figurines which they already have, will lead to a treasure! They find the third figurine in the Palazzo del Porcini, when...

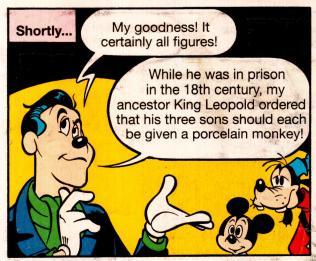

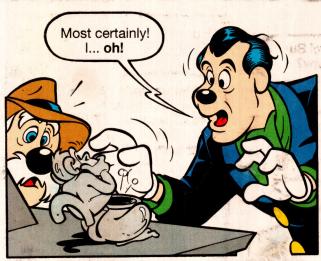

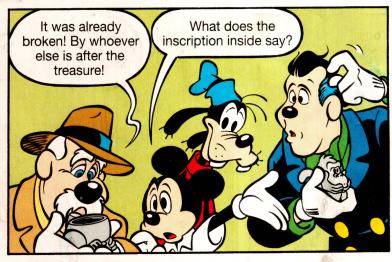

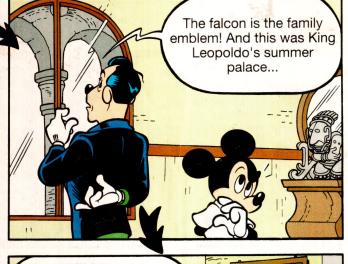

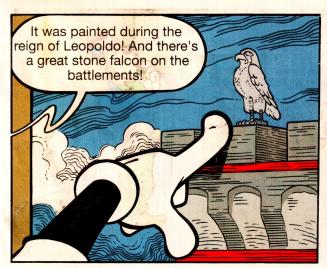

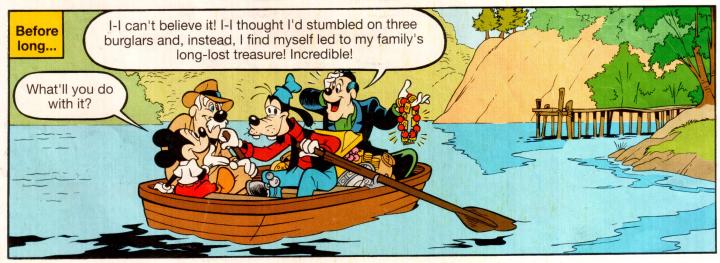

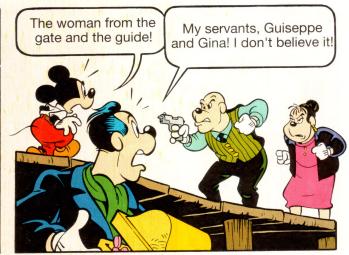

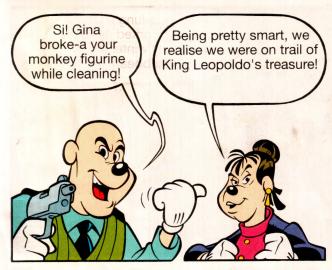

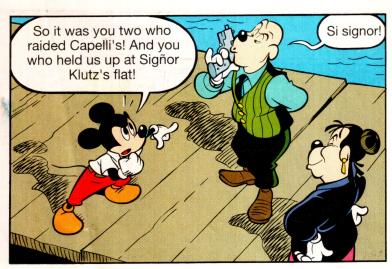

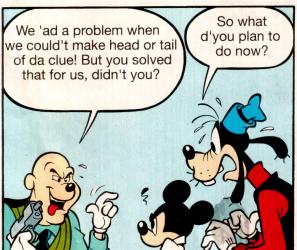

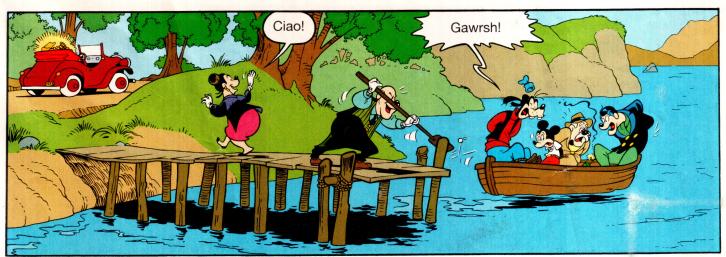

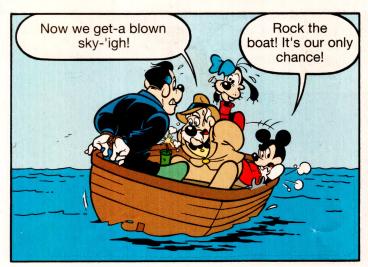

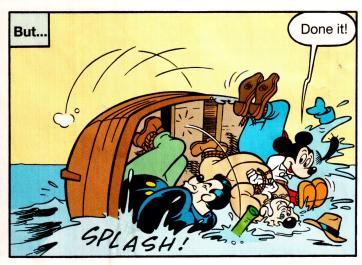

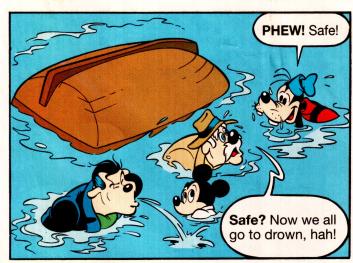

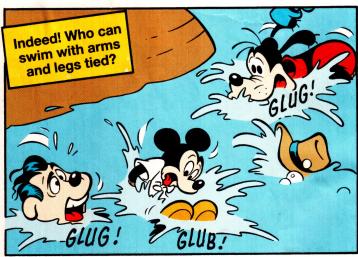

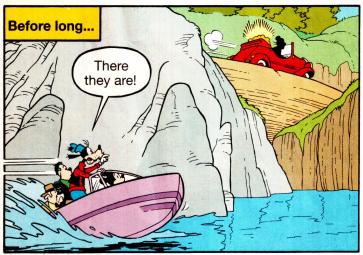

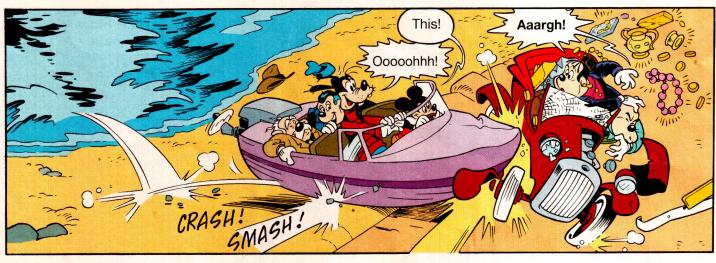

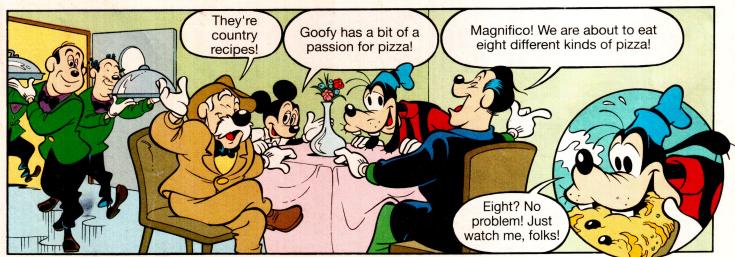

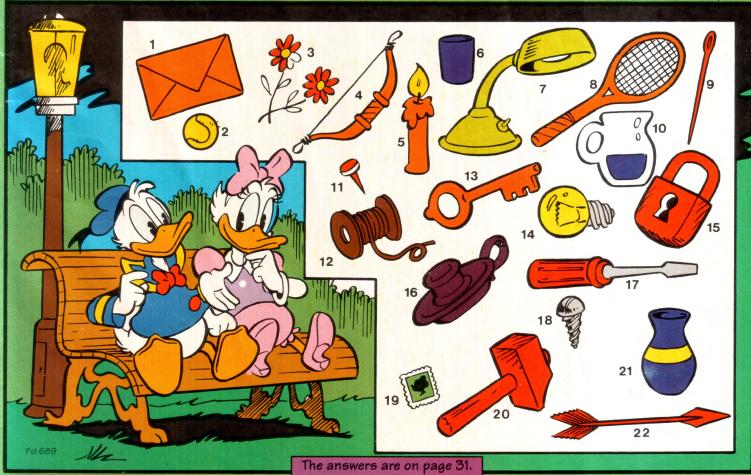

THE BIGHT MATCHE

Are Donald and Daisy the perfect match? Who knows?! Here are some items that are the right match - can you find each pair?

Which games are played by these clubs: Harlequins; Spurs; Lancashire C.C.C.; Bishop Auckland; Horsham Blue Star Harriers?

Answer: 'soitalnte ,lledtoot nusteme Kugby, professional football, cricket,

Laugh of the week

"This is a truth drug!" you say to your victim. "Drink it, and you will tell only the truth!" Then you offer him a glass of lemonade in which you've stirred a spoonful of salt. He'll probably say he doesn't believe it, but, curious, he'll take a sip ... and if he doesn't, persuade him to! When he drinks it he should say something like, "Ugh! This is revolting!" To which you reply, "You're right. I told you it was a truth drug!"

UGH! THIS IS REVOLTING!

AND THAT'S THE TRUTH!

Easy for sum!

Write down a list of numbers and tell your audience you'll keep going until someone says, "Stopl" As soon as that happens you'll give them, faster than anyone can add up, the sum of all the numbers! How it's done: It's simple enough if you can do a bit of mental arithmetic. You just write down a list, starting with 1, in which you double the preceding number as you go along, as Scrooge has done here i.e. I doubled equals 2, doubled equals 4, and so on.

When someone tells you to stop, the sum of all the numbers will be twice the adding up all Scrooge's

Inside Gyro's workshop

The Indian rope trick works!

Get a length of thin, fine wool and stick one end of it to the floor with a piece of sticky

Now blow up a balloon and rub it over a woollen pullover. The balloon will then attract static electricity. Hold the "electric" balloon over the length of wool and the wool will start to rise up through magnetic attraction. Two hints: You may have to shorten the length of wool to get it to stand up. And make sure the balloon doesn't touch the wool, or it won't work!

Beat this!

Those exam nerves ...

... among your school friends, can be measured just by taking their pulse! Find the artery in a friend's wrist. Count how often it beats during a period of 15 seconds. Multiply the result by 4. This gives you the number of times per minute of the heartbeat. The normal rate should be between 70 and 90 beats a minute.

The pulse rate never lies ... if it's too fast it means the heartbeat has speeded up under stress, from exam nerves, for instance. If you can't pick up the pulse beat in the wrist, put your hand on your friend's heart and feel the beat from there.

Try this tongue-twister on your friends: "Fred fled from fifty fluttering fireflies!"

What's your line?

What is meant by these lines: The Plimsoll Line; the P and O Line; the Date line; Crossing the line; making a bee-line?

The eafety line for loaded ships; Peninsula and Orlent shipping line; 180 degrees west of Greenwich, where the date changes; crossing the Equator; a straight, direct course.

Seeing is believing

Making pictures seem like 3-D

You can see photographs and pictures almost in 3-dimension if you close one eye firmly. Find a photograph with people in the foreground and a landscape background. Close one eye and concentrate on it. With this continuous, one-eyed concentration the people will appear to come forward out of the picture. It's important to find the right distance to focus from the picture - you can only achieve this by trial and error.

If you want to get really mad ...

... just get yourself a sandbag!

For this object, especially designed for those who like to lose their temper, you need a balloon, some fine sand, a funnel and a stick. Put the funnel into the neck of the balloon and fill it slowly with sand. The sand will probably be reluctant to flow into the balloon, so use the stick to poke it in.

Keep the sand flowing in until the balloon is as big as a water bomb. Then tie the neck in a knot so that no air can get in.

You can have all sorts of fun with this sandbag. You can make funny noises with it, or you can throw it against a wall when you want to go into a rage (not too hard, though, or you'll burst it!), put it under someone's

DISNEP'S THE

LION KING POSTER MAGAZINE

MEET THE CAST OF THE FILM

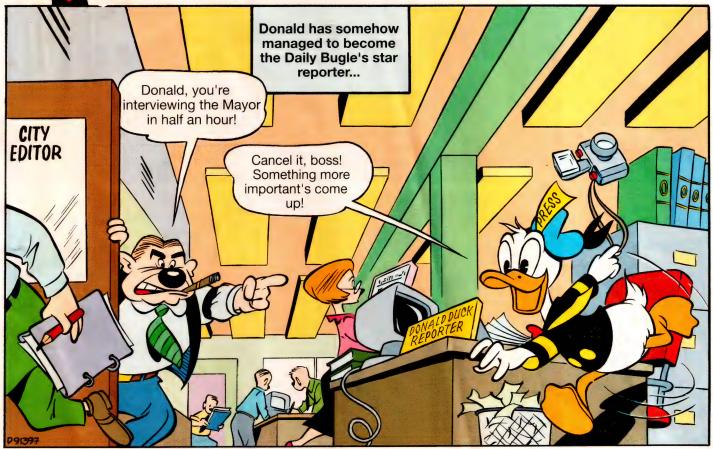

AMAZING BEHIND-THE-SCENES FACTS!

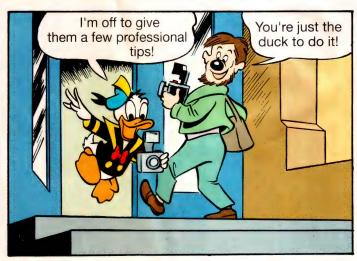

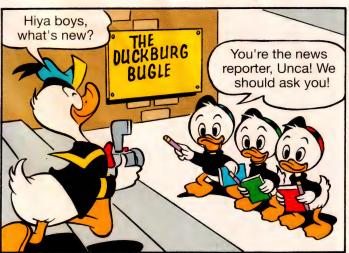

UNCLE SCROOGE

Good News

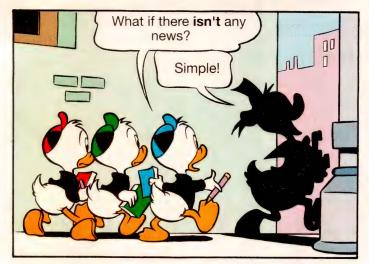

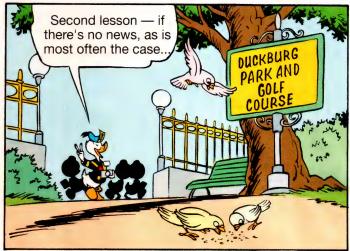

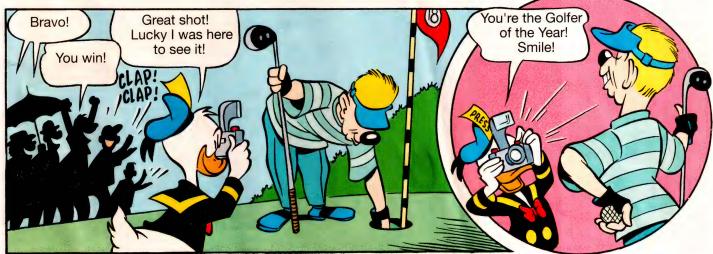

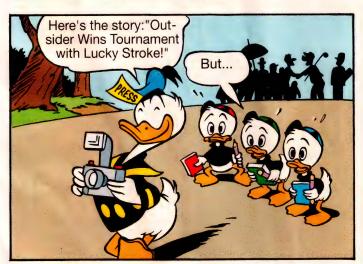

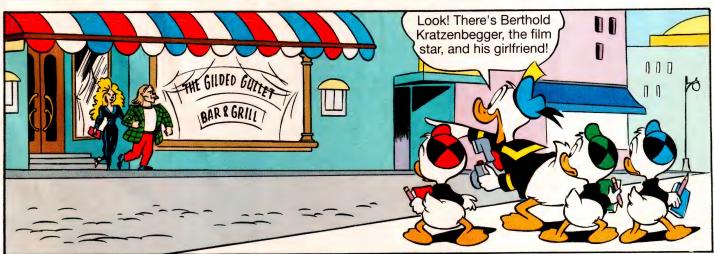

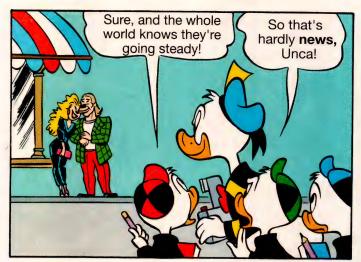

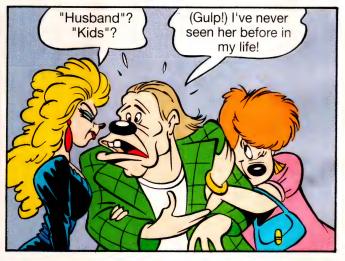

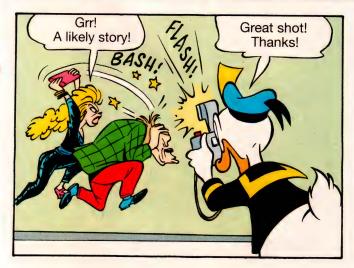

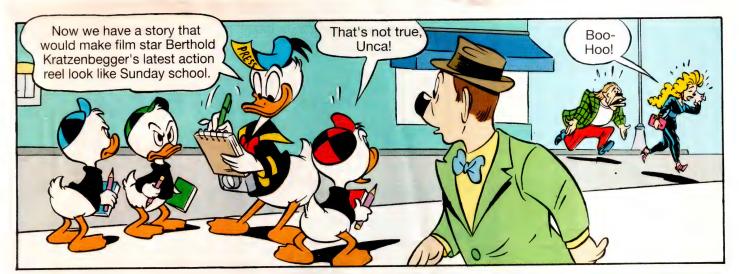

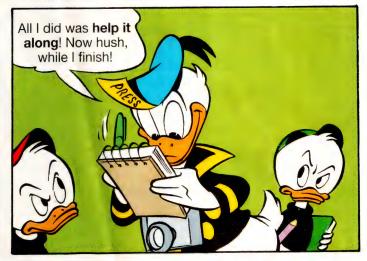

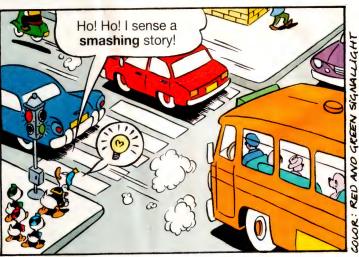

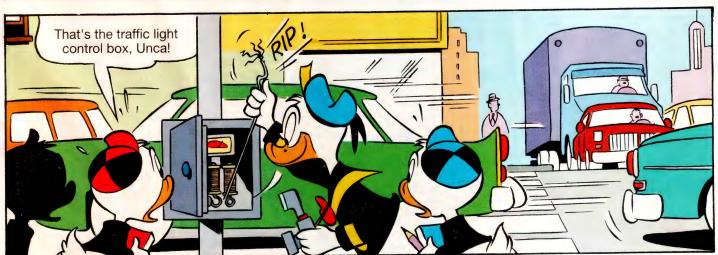

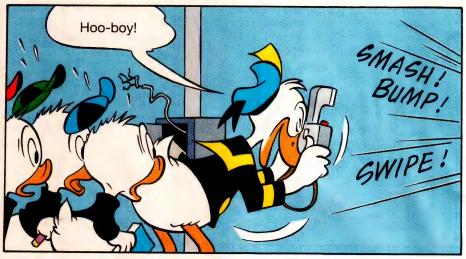

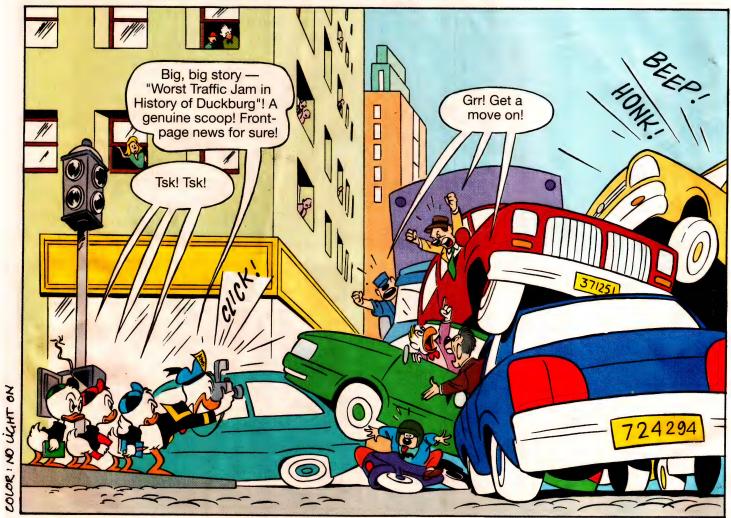

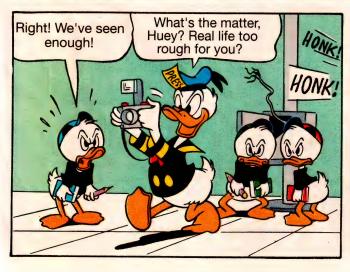

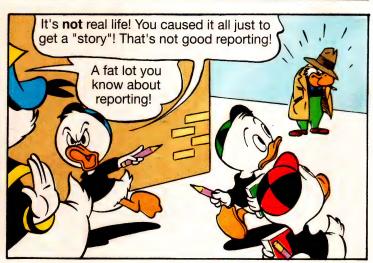

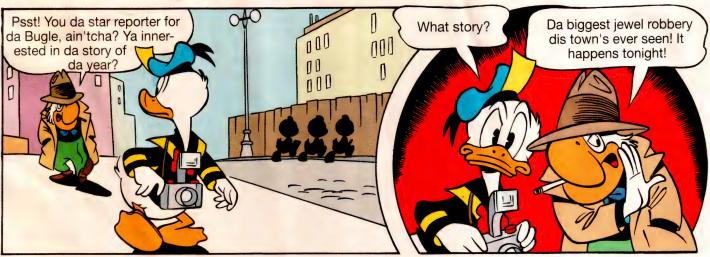

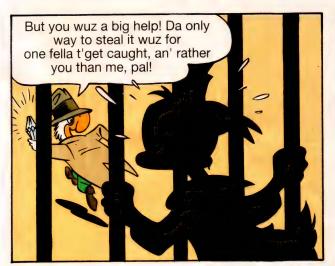

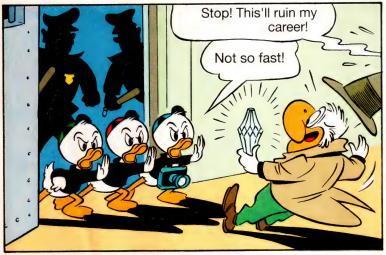

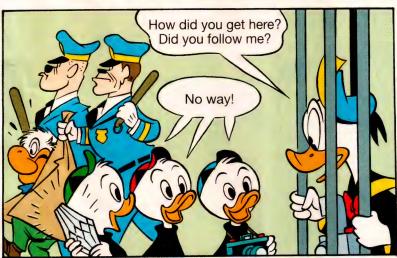

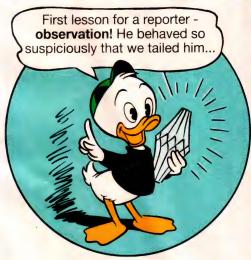

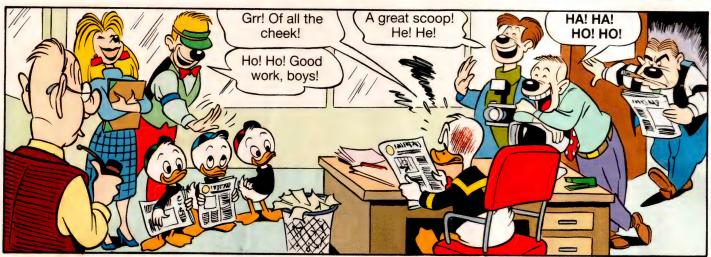

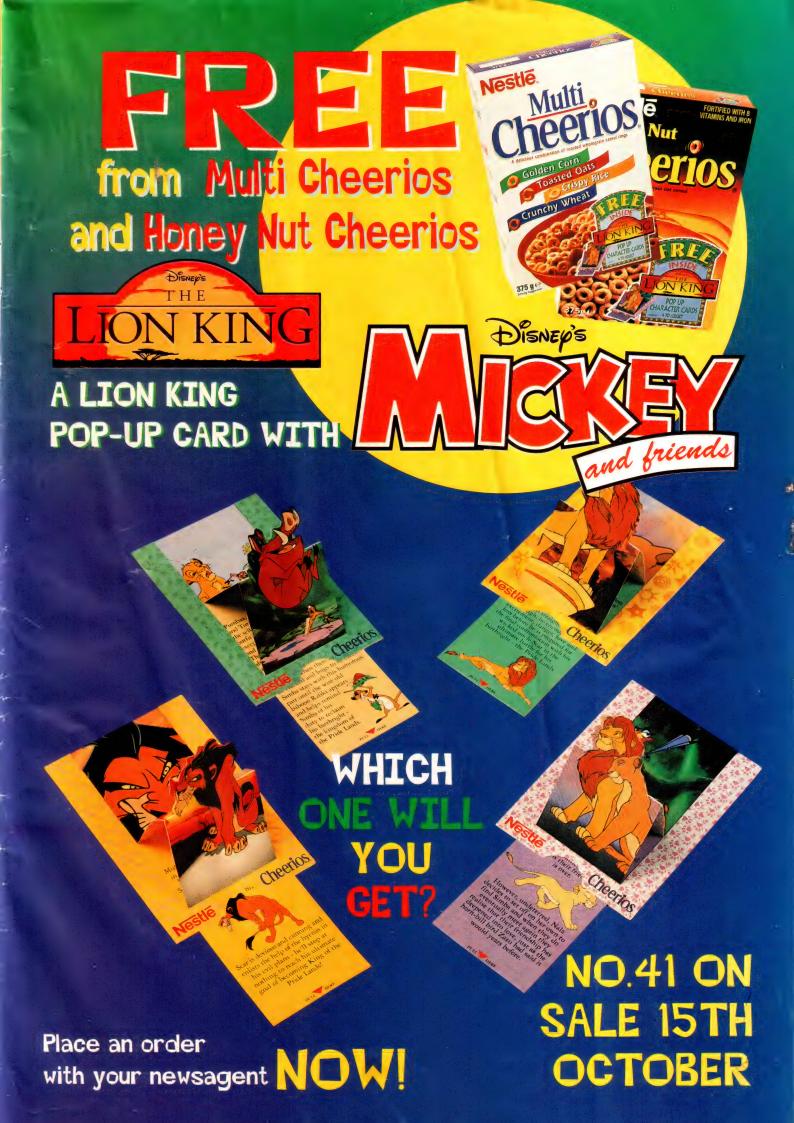

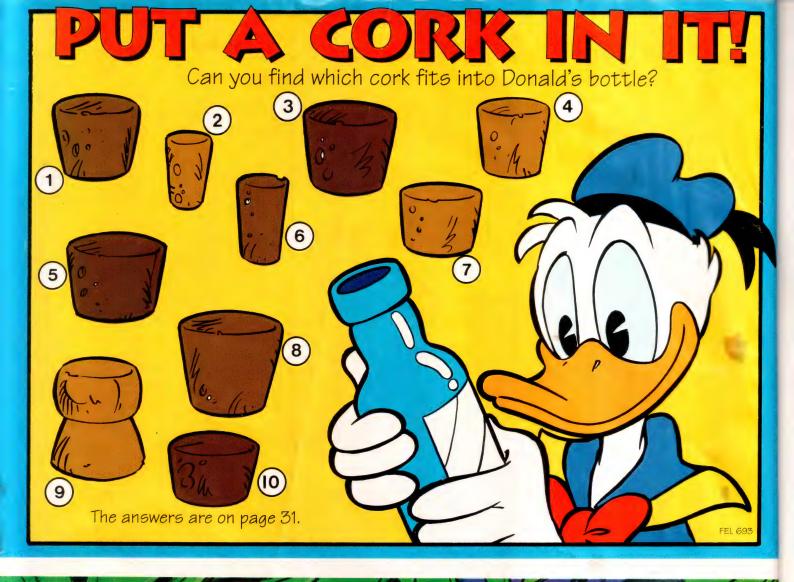

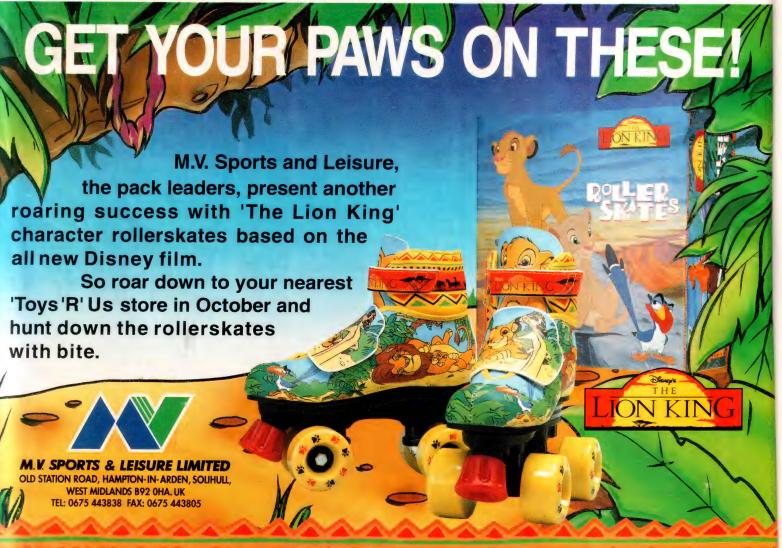

MADAM MIM

Cat's Cradle

